Evidence

Ross's professional reputation is evidenced by the two books he has written (the first has been translated into three languages/sold 55,000 copies), his professional training career, his YouTube channel, and his various court cases in which he has successfully provided expert services.

Ross Rosenberg's Bio:

Ross Rosenberg is a psychotherapist, international speaker, author, professional trainer, and codependency (Self-Love Deficit Disorder™), narcissism, trauma and sex addiction specialist. He owns Clinical Care Consultants, a multi-location Chicago suburb counseling center and The Self-Love Recovery Institute. His trainings, which feature his original work, have been presented in 30 states/70 cities and twice in Europe. Ross's work is regularly featured on TV, radio and online. He is one of a very small group of genuine mental health practitioners who has found great success utilizing the YouTube platform (7.5 million views/70K subscribers). His books are best-sellers and considered ground breaking work. Ross has created (trademarked) various psychological theories and techniques, which are accepted world-wide. His theoretical and treatment-oriented work is steeped deeply in addictions, attachment, trauma, family systems, and psychodynamic psychological theory.

Legal Experience

Beginning with his first job out of graduate school (30 years ago) to the present, Ross has comfortably and successfully interfaced with attorneys and the court system. Not only is he cool under fire, he is extremely knowledgeable on various mental health topics. Although he is not an attorney, his familiarity with the legal system greatly benefits his clients.
